

TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 22, 1908.

At this season of the year, when extensive preparations are being made in so many homes for the celebration of the holiday season, large numbers are battling against poverty with helpless ones begging for the bare necessities of life. To such the "beautiful snow" is a grim reminder of another pressing need—fuel. The "crust and the garret" are hard to endure under the best meteorological conditions, but when the snow flakes begin to fall by the windows of cheerless homes the distress is augmented almost beyond endurance. A pathetic story comes from Philadelphia, "the city of brotherly love," as its name implies. A widow in that city has been endeavoring to exist with her two little children on the small pittance of ten cents a day. Mrs. Arbutman, a frail little Russian woman who has been keeping her two babies and herself on ten cents a day, has not been able to work steadily or to stay in a sweatshop to perform her task. Each day during this Christmas season she left her bare room with the two puny babies crying for food, and hurried to the shop. She carried home with her a pile of unfinished trousers. While the children clung to her skirts, pitifully begging for bread, she sewed as fast as she could, always with the dread in her heart that it would grow dark and her task would not be completed. She could not afford a lamp to sew by. She must finish before sundown. At night she crept back to the sweatshop, threw the "finished" "pants" on the floor, and with trembling fingers clutched the 10 cents the proprietor held out to her. It was as much as she could ever earn yet the proprietor of the shop said it was good pay for a poor woman who had two starving babies at home and had to stay and tend them.

That the express business in the United States is conducted in a manner which frees the railroads from competition on freight traffic and that the railroads and express companies are bound in a close intercorporate relationship, is the finding of the Department of Commerce and Labor in a special report recently issued. This report covers the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, at which time there were thirty-four express companies, operating a system of 235,903 miles, of which 216,978 miles were over railroads lines. The report states:

That the relationship of the express companies with each other and the railroads is close" is indicated by the fact that on June 30, 1906, railway companies held $20,668,000 of express company stock and express companies held $22,218,950 of railway stock and $12,324,000 of railway bonds. The contract between a railway and an express company usually provides that the express company shall not make a rate lower than 150 per cent of the freight rate on the same article.

Social amenities were interchanged by Mr. Taft and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor at the annual dinner of the National Civic Federation at New York Tuesday night. "I want it understood," said Mr. Gompers, who was one of the early speakers, "that President-elect Taft will be my president, as much as for any man in the United States." And why not? Mr. Gompers by his course and actions did as much as any man in the country to elect Mr. Taft through his mouthings in support of Mr. Bryan.

GEN. CLARENCE R. EDWARDS, in his report as chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department, shows that the bill Cuba will have to pay for intervention will amount to $6,069,165. Of this $5,311,322 is for the expenses of the American army of pacification and $757,843 for the other expenses of civil government and intervention. And this is Cuba libre! No wonder so many Cubans wish they were back under Spanish rule.

A DISPATCH from Berlin says the "Frankfurter Zeitung" learns from a trustworthy source that Austria-Hungary is prepared to grant Turkey $20,000,000 as compensation for the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The papers add that the transaction only awaits necessary formalities. It is hoped this may settle the matter and the talk of war be stopped.

A STEEL magazine who ought to know puts 25 per cent as "a reasonable profit" in the steel manufacturing business. What have the farmers, merchants and others who do business without protection to say on this subject?

From Washington.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] Washington, Dec. 22.—One of President Roosevelt's last official acts before abandoning the reins of government, will be to send a special message to Congress on the Panama Canal, and it is likely that he and Mr. Taft will arrange a meeting in February to discuss the results of the latter's investigation on the Isthmus. Although the president made it clear today that Mr. Taft's inspection is merely a precautionary any measure, it is no secret that he has become restless under recent criticism, which has hinted at a failure of the present administration on the one as well as the fear of insurmountable engineering obstacles in the construction of the great waterway. When the President and Judge Taft meet, there will result a complete understanding of the value of what has been done, and the adoption of plans for a change of policy, if any is necessary. Judge Taft will return from the Isthmus about February 14.

The twenty-fifth session of the Japanese Diet convened today. Sumitaka Haseba, leader of the Seiyukai party was elected President and Akizuka, a prominent progressive was elected vice president of the House. H. A. Gader, of North Carolina, will be appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of the Canal Zone, according to an announcement made today by Representative J. J. C. of Kentucky. The congressmen said he had the president's promise to that effect.

The President's commission on country life has finished its work of investigation and met here today, preliminary to preparing a report on conditions as discovered by the commission all over the country. Before the end of another fortnight the United States will be on friendly relations with the new government that is established or will be established in Venezuela. The State Department has little information concerning the situation that has arisen in Caracas since the departure of Castro, but advises have been received from various sources indicating that Castro's reign is about to end. Secretary Root refuses to indicate what move is intended by this government but it is certain that a play of some sort is being made, in which the departure of the Maine and other war vessels of the United States whose movements are being concealed, has a part. The Maine could reach Caracas in a week's time, she having left Hampton Roads yesterday. The Dolphin and Des Moines, which have been ordered from Port au Prince upon a mysterious mission also, could make the journey in less time. The bureau of navigation refuses to divulge the destination of any of these vessels, but it is admitted that they are sailing in connection with orders from the State Department. It is evident that Secretary Root desires to have representatives of the United States at hand with a strong force at their command, when the crisis in Venezuela is reached. He does not, however, desire to create the impression that he is, in any way, involving the United States in the moral encouragement of a revolutionary movement in Venezuela. This is one explanation of the secrecy covering the movements of the ships. According to present advice received here, the Maine left Hampton Roads yesterday for Rockland, Maine, and the North Carolina for Charleston. Neither of these movements are announced in the usual daily bulletin of the bureau of navigation.

Attempts to Assassinate.

Calcutta, Dec. 22.—The second attempt on the life of Public Prosecutor Hume, prominent in the prosecution of native anarchists, and the seventh bout outrage on the eastern Bengal line, is engaging the services of the entire police department today. Two bombs were thrown at a train on the eastern Bengal line on which Hume was a passenger. Owing to faulty construction, the explosion of the bombs caused little damage. A few months ago an attempt was made to assassinate Hume by a bomb.

The Striking Cab Drivers.

New York, Dec. 22.—With 1,800 on strike and three establishments badly crippled, leaders of the striking cab drivers and taxicab chauffeurs announced today that 1,000 more unionists will walk out before sundown. Up to the present there has been little disorder, notwithstanding that large forces of strike breakers have been sent to the streets of the New York Cab Company. Officials of the owners' associations are confident of an early victory.

Mysterious Death.

Shrewsbury, Mass., Dec. 22.—Shot through the head, the body of Francis Jones, 20 years old, was found by Dr. William Taft today on the ice of the Quinsigamond at Stringer's Dam on the Shrewsbury side of the lake. The man had been dead 24 hours and was frozen stiff. The police are working on the theory of murder.

Death of a Bishop.

New York, Dec. 22.—Rev. John Mischaud, 65 years old, Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Burlington, Vt., died in St. Vincent's Hospital this city today. He had hurried from Europe in the hope of reaching his native town alive, but was so weakened by the stormy voyage that he lived only a few hours.

Street Duel.

Baltimore, Dec. 22.—As a result of a desperate pistol battle in the street of Baltimore today one Italian was killed, a second probably fatally wounded and two others are under arrest. The four men met on a street corner and immediately began shooting throwing the entire neighborhood of Saratoga and Pearl streets into a panic. The shooting is said to have been the culmination of a feud started in Italy.

Left for Dead.

Durham, W. Va., Dec. 22.—After being left for dead by a mob which had taken him from his home, beaten and shot him, George Origger, in a dying condition, dragged himself two miles over the frozen ground to the house of a friend.

Origger was taken from his house last night by a mob which was licensed by his murderous attack on Ed Bell, a partner in a turkey-shooting contest. Bell made such a low score that Origger struck him with his gun, fracturing his skull. Both Bell and Origger are said to be fatally injured.

Mrs. Talitha W. Wilson emphatically denied on the witness stand in Baltimore yesterday afternoon the many charges that her husband, Dr. Pierce B. Wilson, has made connecting her name with that of former United States Senator Wellington. OUTLAW KILLED.

With his life slowly ebbing away, Dalbert Moore, wanted for robbery, attempting to blow up a circus, and guilty of other crimes, stood face to face last Sunday evening in a desperate battle with a posse, consisting of many farmers and three detectives from Wheeling, W. Va., and fought for over three-quarters of an hour before he fell limp to the bottom of a precipice, some fifty feet below.

Moore was trailed to his hiding place in the mountains of Barbour county, near Phillip, late Saturday afternoon, and in the fastnesses of his native mountains defied the officers. For over a week the Barbour county authorities had been trying to bring their man to justice, but without avail. Finally an appeal was made to the Wheeling police and three of their best men were sent to their aid.

After reaching the supposed hiding place of Moore, it was seen that a desperate fight would be necessary before capture. A hasty conference was held between the detectives and the remainder of the posse, and Moore's fate was quickly decided upon. He was soon surrounded and compelled to fight which resulted in his death.

The Hains Trial. Flushing, N. Y., Dec. 22.—The trial of T. J. Hains who is charged with being a principal in the shooting of W. E. Anna last August, is still absorbing the interest of the community. Just as Justice Crane took his seat Attorney Shay for the defense made the following statement:

"After a conference of counsel we have decided to call as one of our material witnesses for the defense a member of the Bayside Yacht Club who was on the float at the time of the killing. I cannot give you his name but he will swear positively that at no time during that afternoon was Mrs. William Anna on the float and that Capt. Hains was on the float when the shooting began."

Morrill L. Downs, a member of the Bayside Club, who was in the club house when the shooting began, was the first witness. He swore that his attention was attracted by a noise and commotion on the dock and he ran down to it. When he got on the float he demanded who did the shooting and Thornton Hains told him "We are the men."

Downs declared that Thornton Hains also told him to stand back, that it was a job for the police. "At that time Thornton Hains had a cocked revolver in his hand," swore Downs. "I asked those present if they searched the captain and started to do so. As I did so Thornton Hains pushed me aside and told me to get back, as it was a job for the police. I told him he must think us fools to let a stranger armed with a revolver run things, and demanded who he was. He told me that he was Captain Hains of the regular army, the son of General Hains." I declared if he was an army officer he should be a gentleman. Just then the real Captain Hains stepped forward and said, "No, I am Capt. Hains. This is my brother." I said again if he was a gentleman he would give up his gun and the captain said to him, "Yes, do so; this is a gentleman's club." Thornton Hains then broke his revolver, called my attention to the fact that none of the cartridges were exploded, placed them in his pocket and handed the revolver to me. As I started up the float the defendant called me back and handed me the belt and holster in which he had carried his revolver. I left him there and went back up on the dock and cleared a way through women and children gathered there. I did not see him again until he was arrested. I kept the revolver and holster until the police came and gave them to Officer Baker."

Downs was cross examined at great length. John T. Stevens, the next witness, was in a boat fifteen feet off the float when the shooting began. His story was along the line of that of the preceding eye witnesses.

The witness said: "T. Jenkins Hains said to me that he had come there to protect his brother and that if any one had interfered he would have shot him dead." This emphatic declaration staggered the defense and McIntyre jumped to his feet and objected, moving that the statement be stricken out. "I'll allow it to stand," quietly ruled the court.

The Collapse of Castro.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—The overthrow of President Castro which German officialdom believes to be imminent in view of today's news of Venezuela, will probably put an end to the negotiations that Castro had begun for the rehabilitation of Venezuela's navy and army. The collapse of the Castro regime is a distinct disappointment to Germany which was figuring on a number of rich contracts from Castro and big trade concessions. His proposition is now considered out of the question. As the treasury of Venezuela is no longer at his disposal, much advance payment is considered impossible.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—Castro will not have to submit to an operation, according to the final diagnosis of his case by Dr. Israel today. All Castro has to do, is to obtain from his excessive intemperance. Castro will leave the Israel Sanatorium at the end of the week. The other elimination of President Castro from the political life of Venezuela is accepted as an accomplished fact by Venezuelans everywhere, according to advices that reached here today from Caracas. All over Venezuela the feeling against the self-exiled Castro continues at fever heat and he would be in danger of immediate assassination were he to return.

Still a Mystery.

Paris, Dec. 22.—After a re-examination of R. O. Couillard, valet in the Seinhell home on the night of the murder of Adolphe Seinhell, and his mother-in-law, Mme. Japy, Magistrate Andre declared this afternoon that the case "is as much a mystery as ever." The failure of any of the attendants in the Seinhell home to throw any light on the murder has proved a bitter disappointment to the magistrate. Mme. Seinhell will be kept in prison until the end of the week, when, if no further evidence is found, she will be released. "The case is no farther advanced" than when Magistrate Ledith withdrew from it," Andre said today.

Suicide Pact.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 22.—The police today believe a suicide pact was carried out by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Albers, whose bodies, wrapped in each others arms, were found last night on the kitchen floor of their little flat. Death was caused by gas escaping from a range. Albers and his wife had become reconciled after a brief separation but a few hours before they died in the carefully closed room. A police charge hanging over the young man is believed to have inspired the deed.

Work of Fanatics. San Francisco, Dec. 22.—The depredations of a band of fanatics in the cathedral of St. Dominic's Church have aroused the priests and laity of the Catholic Church to feverish excitement and forced the police department into a determined search for the vandals. Gaining entrance to the church by a rear window the vandals tore the vestments from the altar, scrawled blasphemous sentences upon the walls and pulled down the clock and books which were afterwards destroyed and strewn about in the transept. There is no clue, but the police believe the work to be that of religious fanatics.

Steamer Wrecked. Oosthaven, Germany, Dec. 22.—The British steamer Trade, from Galveston to Liverpool, was wrecked today in a terrific gale off Point Mizzenhal, the captain and six of the crew being drowned. The cargo, including 21,000 bales of cotton, was destroyed. Sixty-five of the crew were rescued, after enduring hours of terrible torture and exposure. They were thrown onto the rocky shore, several being fatally injured. The injured men were dragged to the upper cliffs out of the waves. The men were taken from their perilous position by a rescue ship this afternoon.

The Trade also carried a number of passengers, none of whom was lost. The steamer struck on a rock in a heavy fog and was torn to pieces by a heavy gale that sprang up.

To Protect Emigrants.

Rome, Dec. 22.—Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul was urged by the pope today to protect with special zeal the Catholic Italian emigrants to Minnesota and the northwest. The archbishop was received in special audience by the pope and received the congratulations of the pontiff on the growth of Catholicism within his jurisdiction. The pope again took occasion to comment favorably upon the breadth of mind in religious matters shown by President-elect Taft.
